BLIZZARD GRIPS COKE REGION;
TRAFFIC PARALYZED BY SNOW*Wire Communication is Destroyed; Train and Trolley Service Hard Hit in All Directions.*NOVEMBER RECORDS BROKEN*Worst Snow Storm in Recent Years
Catches Region by Surprise; Steel
Which Precedes Snow Causes Wire
to Snap; Heat of Gale Felt Here.

Fast in the grip of the worst snow storm that has visited this section in years, business in the coke region is today at a standstill while an army of men is at work endeavoring to restore transportation and communication. Railroad traffic is seriously impaired, the trolley system tied up, and hundreds of telephone and telegraph wires are down. It will be days before normal conditions are restored.

Although confined to a comparatively limited area, the storm was particularly severe within that section it raged. The entire Pittsburgh district was locked in its grip, but both the east and the west got but little of it. The storm center passed near here, beginning with a rain on Saturday night, this turned to sleet and then to snow. For hours the flakes fell with not a breeze to accompany them. Yesterday afternoon it began to blow, and gale force violence until by night a blizzard was raging. This morning the wind had died down and the sun came out bright for the first time in several days.

The coke region here the brunt of the storm. Considerably more than twelve inches fell, the greatest snow fall in recent years. It was the worst snow storm that has fallen in November during the memory of the oldest inhabitant and the life of the Pittsburgh weather station, where the records date back to 1872. The record for November was broken with the exception of one—that of wind velocity.

Sleet Weighs Wires.
The peculiar nature of the storm, was responsible for the wire-awful trouble. Sleet which formed on the wires weighed them down. When the snow was added to this, the wires snapped. For hours there was not a breath of wind to steady the wires. Had a stiff breeze been blowing, the wires would have been comparatively little trouble. The gale which finally arrived, was too late to prevent serious damage.

For a time yesterday the trolley cars were moved with a fair degree of regularity, although the signal system was out of commission and safety demanded slow progress. After the snow began falling, it became more difficult to run the cars. In some sections service was abandoned. The Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland railroads met their worst trouble between here and Rockwood. East of Rockwood there was little snow, and practically none at Cumberland. The mountain divisions escaped their usual troubles. On the Connellville division of the Baltimore & Ohio, the wires were down most by Meyersdale and trains were delayed somewhat on that account.

Railroads Caught Napping.
The railroad were caught unawares by the storm and were unable to cope with it. On the Baltimore & Ohio, the passenger service was maintained all day Sunday with no train more than 15 minutes late. However, toward evening the snow began to drift, the high wind combined with the sleet and the wires were down. Telegraph wires snapped from off and drifting snow clogged the interlocking switches to such an extent that traffic was almost impossible.

As wire after wire snapped off, communication between stations was rendered impossible. Scheduled trains proceeded slowly under the black sky and extra were not moved at all. The railroad men who came in this morning said that there were no trains stalled between Connellville and Rockwood. At least a dozen telegraph poles are also down, and though a special car loaded with as many men as possible was sent out along the line on Sunday evening, they were unable to do much during the night.

The storm area extends local railroad officials said this morning, from the Allegheny mountains to Chicago. At Sand Patch the fall was about three inches and at Cumberland not quite that much. Trainsload of men were sent out from Chicago over the Baltimore & Ohio last night to open the line.

Service Indefinite.
Passenger service this morning was entirely indefinite. Hundreds of passengers waited in the stations but officials frankly admitted that they could not tell when such and such a train would arrive. They had no means of knowing. There was not more than a mile of unbroken wires at any stretch anywhere on the Connellville division.

No. 14 from Pittsburgh due at 8.45 this morning did not arrive until 9.15, and No. 19 due at 11 o'clock A. M. pulled slowly in at 6.10. No. 8, due at 3 A. M., had not been heard from at 10 o'clock.

No. 15 from Chicago yesterday arrived promptly on time Sunday. A remarkable run, the railroad men declare. No. 53 from Cumberland last night made a good run to Greensburg where it was held up by switch trouble for almost a half hour. The West Penn fought valiantly

ENTIRE EAST IN GRIP OF BIG
STORM; COLD WAVE COMING*From as Far South as Florida a Serious Blow to Crops; Train Service Crippled.
By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Practically the entire country east of the Mississippi river is in the grip of a terrific storm. With high winds from the northeast, no relief is in sight for the next 24 hours, according to the weather bureau. The wind has a velocity of 35 miles an hour and up-ward and is driving snow, sleet and a cold rain into New York and upper New England, where conditions will be worse today than yesterday. Temperature will be colder tonight, but within 24 or 36 hours it is expected the storm will be hot at sea. The center of the storm area today is just east of Lake Erie, where the temperature is in the twenties. Heavy snow falls are reported from western Virginia, western Pennsylvania and western Maryland.

There was frost as far south as Florida, killing vegetation in Georgia and South Carolina.

Snow Plains Are Out.
The snow plains are out on every division, but as fast as a line was cleared the snow drifted back on again and in a short time conditions were worse than ever. The big rotary snow plow, whose services were not needed all last year, was out last night and today in the Juniata district working its way through the drifts.

Superintendent of Transportation Coffey stated this morning that the schedules would be in good shape before the day was out. Much better service would have been maintained out of season.

Wire Trouble Severe.
The worst sufferers were the telephone companies. Because of the snow and sleet which snapped wires like straws, service was seriously impaired. It was stated by the Bell company that local service is about normal, less than 10 per cent of telephones being out of commission. The Tri-State company reported that it had suffered the worst blow in its history, approximately 500 phones being out of commission. It will be three days or more before normal conditions are restored.

Both companies were dealt serious blows, so far as their trunk lines are concerned. The Bell people managed to get into Uniontown and Dunbar, and had service for a time. There isn't a wire working between this point and Pittsburgh—telegraph or telephone. The town is virtually isolated so far as communication with the outside world is concerned.

Live Wire Dropped.
A live wire on the Main street line endangered the lives of the passengers yesterday morning and a watchman was stationed there to warn people of its proximity. Until the wire was cut, it was a danger. Another high tension wire fell on Apple street near the Aaron store.

The wires feeding the street lights in the coke region were reported last evening as being down. The street lights were out, but Chief of Police Butler directed the company to allow the town to remain in darkness rather than endanger lives and property by the possibility of the fallen telegraph and telephone wires being changed by contact with the food wires.

Animals and sometimes were blown down from stores and residences all over town. There was no vehicle capable of any amount of travel. The streets were covered with a layer of snow. It was impossible to proceed, but sleighs were out in force this morning.

Dr. J. L. Cochran's automobile was hit in a snow drift near the News-Miner farm yesterday afternoon and it was necessary to secure a team of horses to tow it into town. When the horses were about exhausted when they arrived here.

The coke trade will be badly crippled for a few days. In the Mount Pleasant cuts drifts 10 to 12 feet high are reported by the railroad officials. Shifting conditions will be unable to get through to move these cars that have been loaded and are necessary to secure a team of horses to tow them into town. When the horses were about exhausted when they arrived here.

Streets are Blocked.
In town the drifts blocked the streets and it was practically impossible for teams to travel. A few automobiles were out yesterday, but most of them were being kept in the garages. Early this morning the street sweeping brigade began its work. These sweeps indicated this morning that pavements must be cleaned promptly, and the police will be instructed to see that this is done.

For the most part the snow was waist-deep along the pavement and there were few broken paths in any part of town. On the Pineville road the snow was about 12 inches deep. On the down town section, patches were cleared across Brimstone corner early, and Street Commissioner J. W. Shaffer then had his men at work getting the snow off other cross-ings in the business district. The snow was wet and uncomfortable for those not equipped with rubbers or boots.

School Attendance Small.
Because of the snowdrifts which made walking next to impossible in all sections of the town, there was a small attendance at school today. In the primary grades it was stated that less than half the pupils reported. In secondary a room in town was more than two-thirds the usual enrollment present. All of the teachers reported with the exception of two, who travel by trolley. They were hours late arriving.

In the country districts there was practically no school. A number of Connellville teachers who are employed in Dunbar township and other rural districts were unable to get to their schools because there was no trolley service.

The West Penn fought valiantly

Doctors Take Lead in the Y. M. C. A.
Gym Work Among Business Men

More doctors than any other class of men, and nearly all the younger doctors in Connellville, are in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium's business and professional men's class. This indicates that doctors practice what they prescribe—physical exercise and play. Volleyball, which is the newest of American indoor games, is their favorite recreation and each Tuesday afternoon afternoons an enthusiastic bunch of doctors at work in the gym.

"You counts for more than time when it comes to doing things," is the text on which physical recreation workers are being preached to business men, and those Connellville men who have given regular gymnasium play a trying out say that they got the vim necessary to make work a pleasure.

Tomorrow evening the men who cannot get away from work during the day will meet to organize a basketball league and get the senior class activities under way for the winter. Among the things contemplated, in addition to regular gym work and basketball, is a running team. A relay race from Connellville to Scottsdale between Connellville teams is being planned.

The new heating plant for the swimming pool is doing its work night and day, and the pool is now at a comfortable temperature and will be kept so all winter.

Boys are still coming in squads for membership, but through the efforts of the general secretary and the older boys the greater number of those now coming in are older fellows, 15 to 17. There is still plenty of room for boys of this age, and all who come will be well taken care of, whether they are able to pay for their membership or not.

The executive committee will meet at the home of J. Lawrence Schick on Wednesday evening to plan for a big open house night the latter part of the month. At this point the various tournaments, such as checkers, chess, billiards, shooting, basketball and volleyball will be launched. Every supporter of the association and their friends will be invited, and it is planned to make it the biggest social event in the history of the local association.

CONSTABLE LOCKS HIS PRISONER IN FREIGHT CAR
Then He Summons the Local Police, Declaring He Has a Murderer.

Rumors of another murder at Green Junction Saturday afternoon proved to be merely rumors and Chief of Police Butler and Constable Wilson had a trip up there for nothing.

In response to a telephone message that a murderer had been caught, Constable Wilson was called to the scene. He found a man in a box car, the officers left about 4 o'clock for South Connellville. Arriving at the power plant they found no signs of excitement, but a few minutes later they ran across Constable Fields of South Connellville who was industriously guarding a colored man in one of the freight cars.

Fields explained that he had seen the negro prowling about and suspected that he was the one wanted for complicity in the murder of Al Tulek at Green Junction on October 29. Chief Butler went into the car and looked the prisoner over. "No, you're right I don't," was the chief's reply as he prepared to return to Connellville.

The chief is positive that this was not the man wanted in the murder case so he was allowed to go immediately.

Guard Duty and Courtesy to Officers Criticized.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—Reports of the inspection of the National Guard at the summer encampment were made public by the Adjutant General's Department without any rating of organizations.

A number of recommendations as to improvement are made, including one that the guardmen should encamp later in the year than at present, because of damage to unharvested crops.

WHEN YOUTH GOES ON TRIAL FOR A MURDER*Burns Detectives Hope to Prove Walter Thomas
Innocent.*ACCUSED OF KILLING WOMAN*He Will Be Tried at Waynesburg for Brutal Attack at Rice's Landing
Which Cost Life of Mrs. Price and Seriously Injured a Young Girl.

WAYNESBURG, Nov. 10.—In the county jail here is confined an 18-year-old youth known as Walter Thomas, awaiting trial, charged with one of the most atrocious murders committed in this section. While he is but a poor farm hand, without funds, family or friends, unknown to him, a powerful detective agency has just completed an investigation and uncovered evidence which, it is believed, will not only clear the boy at the trial, but will convict one person and possibly another, not now implicated in the murder charge.

No arrests have been made as a result of the investigation, and it is said the implication of the suspected will be developed automatically with the defense of young Thomas, whose real name is William Alvin.

On the morning of September 2, last, Mrs. Josephine P. Price, 55 years old, a resident of Jefferson township, one half mile from Rice's Landing, was found in bed, murdered. Her skull had been crushed with a hammer. The same instrument had been used on the head of Berta Fox, a 12-year-old granddaughter of the dead woman, but not with fatal results. The two occupied the same bed. The child was hurried to the West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh with a fractured skull. It is said she has not thrown any light on the affair, but is expected to be an important witness at the trial. The husband of the woman, Oliver Price, was said to be in Pittsburgh on the night of the murder. Her son, Walter Price, who is a constable at Rice's Landing, has just made a trip to Waynesburg that night.

Suspicion pointed to young Thomas who had been employed on the farm for about three years. "He was mischievous," said the wife, "and was a horse from the stable was missing. The horse was found wandering homeward, riderless, that afternoon. Bloodhounds were sent to the scene and every effort made to locate the murderer. He had been missing for a number of days, but on September 11 was arrested by Walter Price, son of the dead woman, four miles from Washington.

The suspect had not been a regular wage-earner and it is said he had some words with Mrs. Price some time before the murder and had left. He returned a few days before the date of the murder. The boy's brother is a resident of Pittsburgh. He was unknown locally when he applied for work on the Price estate.

Some time in his life Thomas became a member of a secret order. It was this order that interested itself in his behalf, and it was not only decided that an investigation should be made of all the circumstances, but that it should be made in the most thorough manner possible. The case was placed in the hands of the W. J. Burns detective agency.

Immediately one of the most skillful operatives was put to work. He began on September 29 and has since then been working hard, turning up a mass of detail that will fill a volume. The operative came from Pittsburgh, carrying with him all necessary credentials showing his connection as a traveling representative of a well known Pittsburgh concern.

The information developed is said to be of a startling character. When offered as testimony will carry with it a number of serious and thoroughly clear up the circumstances surrounding the murder.

It is the opinion of some that Berta Fox will not be able to throw any light on the crime. She was an invalid and had been confined to her room for some time as her recovery was slow. It is said that she did not speak to anyone about the crime further than to tell the physician who hurried her to the hospital that young Thomas had been in the room.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. P. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet company, Columbus, O.—Adv.

BLIZZARD GRIPS COKE REGION; TRAFFIC IS PARALYZED BY SNOW

(Continued from Page One.) With snowdrifts piled so high that roads are virtually obliterated in the country districts, travel was next to impossible. Farmers found it difficult to reach their stock and most of them confined their activities to seeing that the animals were taken care of.

Caught in Drifts. Several women residing in the East Park addition went to church last night but on the return they were forced to cut out the men of that neighborhood to get them out of the snowdrifts. They were unprepared, unable to go forward or back, so deep had the snow drifted. Several of them went into drifts up to their shoulders.

A volunteer fire crew went to their assistance. All were exhausted by the time they had reached their homes. Similar conditions existed in other parts of town. The darkness added to the difficulties of the pedestrians.

Hedges and shrubbery were damaged by the storm. The weight of the snow broke them down. Hundreds of bushes were flattened out by the weight of the snow and sleet which piled on them.

The temperature dropped to 25 degrees, the lowest that has yet been recorded this season. In Pittsburgh official figures show 21 degrees as the lowest, which exceeded all records for November.

The storm was most unusual. Precipitation was shattered when the low temperature was accompanied by a few thermometer readings that never go together, weather experts say.

The blizzard originated unexpectedly at Charleston, S. C., and instead of following the coast as such storms usually do, it moved directly north. This district got the very worst of it. In the east the temperature last night was above 50 and it was raining. There was but little or no snow east of Cumberland, and very little west of Columbus, and it was not until Tuesday as much snow fell in Pittsburgh yesterday than has ever been recorded in the 31 years of the weather bureau station there. Colder weather is indicated in the weather forecast.

BACKACHE VANISHES RHEUMATIC PAINS GO.

Few Doses of Croxone Ease Stiff, Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders.

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone promptly relieves these diseases because it really does reach the root cause. It soaks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys, cleans out the stoppered-up inactive organs, neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid and makes the kidneys efficient.

From the blood the waste and poisonous matter that cause in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and gives the kidneys renewed strength so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.—Adv.

To which we would add—when you need a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

RUB OIL ON ACHING LAME BACK AND GET RELIEF INSTANTLY

Rub Lumbago, Backache, Soreness, Stiffness Away With St. Jacob's Oil.

Kidneys cause Backache? No! They have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain. Listen! Your backache is caused by lumbago, sciatica or a strain, and the quickest relief is St. Jacob's Oil.

Rub it right on the aching or tender spot, and instantly the pain, soreness, stiffness and lameness disappear. Don't play croquet! Get a small tin of St. Jacob's Oil from your druggist and rub it up. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache, sciatica or lumbago pain. "St. Jacob's Oil" is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

It's the only application to rub on a weak lame or painful back, or for lumbago, sciatica, neuritis, rheumatism, sprains or a strain.—Adv.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE IS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

They Love to Take It and It Doesn't Harm the Tender Little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath has a sourish, sticky odor; if you have a cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "Fruit Laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!—Adv.

REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Interesting Reading for the Man or Woman Who Has Ever a Small Estate.

The Superintendent of Banking of the State of New York, in a recent report says: "History does not record a single instance of the loss of a dollar of funds held in trust by a trust company. On the other hand history does record thousands of dollars lost through the carelessness, lack of experience and dishonesty of individual trustees." Reading this, any thinking man will, I think, see the wisdom of having a reliable trust company as his executor or to settle him in any capacity of trust. Here in Conneltsville we have such a company—The Young Trust Company, an organization that keeps trust funds separate and distinct from its other assets and whose corporate responsibility, continuous life and able management of any property committed to its care.

CHOIR PLAYS THE

The spectacle of the only orthodox Democratic organ of Fayette county shuddering under the brutal treatment accorded the Washington party leaders of Conneltsville by the Republican leaders and particularly by The Courier ought to be embalmed in the "movie."

We know of no reason why the House of Representatives should not abundantly satisfied with the results of the election. They got almost everything they asked for.

The little troubadour who is singing this sentimental song to them is only practicing for the Democratic convention next year when it is hoped to nominate Stephen Leslie Mestrezat for Governor on a Progressive-Democratic ticket with President Wilson, Premier Bryan, Plain John Keffer, the Harbord Boys and other notables in the forefront of the line.

There will be some difficulty, however, in demonstrating the Progressive quality of Justice Mestrezat's Democracy. In his most eloquent and all respects able address, delivered before the bar association recently, he declared himself earnestly and unqualifiedly for the Constitution as it is, and against the modern tendency to deny, deny and deny it. He said that he thought justly that the Constitution is sufficient for our needs if we but enforce its provisions.

But that is not Progressive doctrine as we understand it. The Progressives think the Constitution is an antiquated charter, out of date and out of style; and they would have us put it out of mind.

Justice Mestrezat is not a Progressive, he's a Standpatist, but he's a Standpatist in a different sense. The Constitution still has a few friends.

The choir practice of the Democratic organ is noisy but unconvincing. There never was any Progressive Democracy in this country but the Progressives, and their Progress was always backward, and it never had any of the salt tears of hypocrisy and the sweet honey of hypocrisy cannot be mixed in sufficient quantity to do any considerable number of Republicans with any other notions be they Progressives or otherwise.

FREAK WEATHER.

Freak weather has been the fashion for several years past. We have needed in regulating almost everything but the weather. It defies the prophecies as well as the control of man.

The winter blizzard which holds Western Pennsylvania in its grasp snaked in upon us yesterday morning in an insidious beautiful snow manner, but the soft and gentle flakes became stinging missiles before nightfall, while the heavy snowfall paralyzed traffic, and its weight coupled with the wind's velocity broke down poles and wires and wrought havoc with lightning and telephone service.

The experience of yesterday is one of the strong arguments for underground wires in the crowded city districts. The wires are unsightly, but we can endure that. It is when they become a deadly menace to life and property during storms and fires that the desirability of setting them underground within reasonable limits is apparent. This improvement, however, will probably come in proper time. Progress doesn't come all at once like Progressivism.

This violent winter storm from out of the south, coupled with the blizzard from the Northwest that simultaneously swept the Lakes, may not be proofs positive of a long and hard winter, but they have an uncomfortably suggestive look.

The Daily Courier is eleven years old today. Its initial issue was printed November 10, 1902. It consisted of eight pages of five columns each. Its circulation was approximately 1,000 copies. It has grown since then, and the growth has not been forced. It aims to thoroughly cover its territory and to give its readers and its advertisers the best service in the field.

The News needs a fresh rag to chew.

The Legislature merely changed the schedule for the Embury City of Conneltsville, setting it back another month. We won't mind a little thing like that. The Court set us back two years.

Isn't Winter the savage Indian? Some startling developments are promised in the Blue's Landing murder. It has been slithered.

If these Lake Erie improvements at Dikerson Island had been located near or broad Ford we would have annexed them.

The present town council is taking no parliamentary chances. In which respect it materially differs from some of its predecessors.

The money should not be allowed to lie around to tempt small boys.

American steel is preparing to meet competition, and competition is coming to the meeting.

The borough government still has time to issue a few certificates of indebtedness. This delectable habit will be eliminated with the advent of city government.

The town council has started some paying reforms which it will hardly live to see imitated.

In the matter of state laws the counties are now coming into their own, but the coming will be slow if the state has to build all those permanent highways without putting forth any bonds.

Connellsville City Government; When Does it Properly Begin?

Connellsville's pathway to third class city government has not been strewn with roses; there have been thorns and stones aplenty. In our half-baked state we have passed from one legislative condition to another, involving one legal deliverance after another, and we are not entirely sure that the end is yet in sight. In the face of what seems to be the plain language of the law, that Conneltsville's city government begins the first Monday in January, some very competent legal authorities hold that it begins the first Monday in December, and thereby hangs a long tale.

In November, 1910, Conneltsville voted to become a city of the third class, the census of that year having shown that its population exceeded the limit set by law. The election was held under the Act of 1893, which provided that after the boroughs had voted to become cities "the charters of said cities or boroughs shall continue in full force and operation, and all officers under the same shall hold their respective offices until the first Monday in April following the third Tuesday in February next succeeding the holding of the voters' meeting to elect city officers, at which time the officers of said city chosen at the preceding municipal election shall enter upon their respective terms of service, and the city government shall be duly organized under its act."

But at the November election of 1910 the people had adopted an amendment to the Constitution providing that thereafter all municipal elections should be held in November of each odd-numbered year, and the third Tuesday of February in each year. Under this amendment there could be no city election in Conneltsville until November, 1911.

At the meantime, the Act of June 21, 1911, was passed to make effective the Constitutional amendment. This act provided that boroughs voting to become cities shall continue as boroughs until "the first Monday in December of the first odd-numbered year next succeeding the holding of the voters' meeting to elect city officers, at which time the officers of the said city elected at the preceding municipal election," that is to say, in November, shall enter upon their respective terms of office and city government under this act shall begin."

It seemed plain that Conneltsville would elect city officers in November, 1911, and that the city government would begin the first Monday in December of the same year. Such was no doubt the intention of the law-making power.

But the Governor did not issue the letters patent until 1911, and upon intervention by local interests seeking to prolong borough government Judge Van Swearingen decided that the "first odd-numbered year" next succeeding the holding of the voters' meeting to elect city officers was not 1911, but 1912, and he decreed that borough government should continue until the first Monday of December, 1912, when city government would begin. This decision was affirmed by the higher courts. In the meantime the Clark bill was passed by the legislative session of 1912. It revolutionized city government, putting it on a centralized instead of a representative basis. It provided that embryonic cities shall elect city officers at the same time, that is to say, the first Monday in January, following the first Monday in December in January, following.

It is further provided that in all full-fledged cities, where city government is existing and the terms of any officers expire the first Monday in December of that year, the new city officers shall take their seats at that time, and that thereafter the terms of the city officers shall begin on the first Monday of January, the purpose of the act being to prevent an interregnum in December and to make the terms of all city officers run with the calendar years.

Notwithstanding what seems to be the plain language and intent of the law, some excellent lawyers hold that Conneltsville city government begins the first Monday in December, next. The very able and learned legal opinion seems to be that it is a decree of the courts that under the Van Swearingen decision the borough officers shall hold over until the first Monday in December; that in the absence of any other provision to the contrary, the city government must necessarily step in to save the community from a state of anarchy, that is to say in the absence of constituted government, for a period of one month.

But it should be remembered that courts do not make the law; they only construe it. The legislatures make the laws and alter them at will. The Conneltsville city government, when Judge Van Swearingen made his decision in 1911 and decreed that Conneltsville's borough officers should hold over until the first Monday of December, 1912, when city government should begin, he merely followed the law as it then existed. The law has since been changed making the date at which city government in embryonic cities shall begin the first Monday in January of even-numbered years.

Connellsville's city government proceedings started under the Act of 1893, but it could not disregard the Act of 1912 under cover of a judicial decision of the vintage of 1911. This is the first time the Legislature has changed the date of the beginning of city government, or shortened or prolonged the life of local government.

City government should proceed cautiously. We want no come-backs. We want a month more than to do things which might some day be undone at much trouble and expense. The objection that Conneltsville will be without any government is not reasonable. The borough officers may hold over under the decision as amended by the new legislation; or, for the matter of that, under the general, reasonable and necessary rule of law that corporate officers hold over until their successors qualify.

Under the arrangement the new city officers will begin with a clean sheet and not have one month of a lost year to account for. In the meantime, the Mayor and Council can administer the city under the existing city code and considering the numerous important appointments to be made in the municipal service, they will find this extra month very convenient for those purposes.

MADRID.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slawh."

Madrid, the capital of Spain and the center of the guitar, cigarette and bull fighting industries of the world, is situated in the geographical center of Spain, 2,500 feet above sea level, in a heavy draught.

Madrid is noted in literature for its lovers, and among tourists for its climate. The lovers average 123 in the shade as they stand before the barred windows of the Madrid debutantes and slush, but the climate is more flecked. It varies from 123 in the shade to freezing, and it can accomplish both in the same day. The prevailing Madrid costume in summer is a thin suit, a fan, a heavy woolen blanket and a straw hat.

Madrid is not as old as most European cities. Before the sixteenth century it was only a walled station, and wasn't even in a class with bull fighting leagues. In 1560 it was made capital of Spain, however, and grew rapidly. It now contains 600,000 people, several of whom do not smoke cigarettes.

Madrid has one of the largest palaces in the world, and a handsome new railway station. It has more fine painting than New York and more churches than Chicago, but has to get along without roof gardens or Chinese restaurants. It has a university with 5,000 students, but it is a tame affair, not having broken a collar bone or burned a building since the seventeenth century. Madrid has 72 public squares, all completely filled at all times with gentlemen of leisure, including a large number of statues of deceased kings.

Madrid does most of the manufacturing for Spain and is a growing town, about the size of Cleveland, Ohio. In general liveliness it resembles the latter city after 1 A. M. The principal amusements in Madrid are sleeping in the afternoon, promenading in the evening and betting on which precedent the King of Spain will break next. It resembles an American city in only one thing—the street cleaning department seems to require about the same amount of rest.

"The lovers average 123 in the shade, but the climate is more flecked."

Men's Working Shoes

MEN, WE WANT YOU to see our Work Shoes—the complete line. When passing by our windows, just stop and look them over. Elk-Skin leather has gotten to be very popular with the young men. They are heavy—two and sometimes three soles thick—cut very soft, and pliable upper stocks, that any one can wear them and their feet will feel comfortable. Heretofore the working-man has had to wear too stiff a shoe if he got a heavy pair, but not so today. Ask to see our elkskin water-proofs and heavy chrome calf—both in high and regular heights—$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50 to $6.00.

WITHIN THE LAW

By MARVIN DANA
FROM THE PLAY OF BAYARD VEILLER

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fry Company.

Garson picked up a penholder from the desk and began tapping lightly on the rim of the transmitter. It was a code message in Morse. In the room around the corner the tapping continued clearly, ticking out the message that the way was free for the thieves' coming.

For a final safeguard Garson searched for and found the telephone bell box and uncovered the bell, which he placed on the desk. He then took his pistol from his hip pocket and thrust it into the right side pocket of his coat. Once again, now, he produced the electric torch and lighted it as he extinguished the lamp on the table.

He then went to the door into the hall, opened it and, leaving it ajar, made his way in silence to the outer doorway. The doors there were freed of their bolts, and one of them swung while so silently that the affair went unnoticed that hardly was the door open before the three men slipped in and stood mute and motionless in the hall while Garson refastened the doors. Then Garson walked quickly back to the library. Behind him, with steps as noiseless as his own, came the three men.

When all were gathered in the library Garson shut the hall door, touched the button in the wall beside it, and the chandelier threw its radiant light on the group.

Griggs was in evening clothes, seeming a very elegant young gentleman indeed, but his two companions were of grosser type as far as appearances went—one, Ducey, thin and wiry, with a ferret face; the other, Chicago Red, a brawny ruffian, whose stolid features nevertheless exhibited something of half sullen good nature.

"Everything all right so far," Garson said mildly. He turned to Griggs and pointed toward the heavy hangings that shrouded the octagonal window. "Are those the things we want?" he demanded.

"Yes," was the answer. "Well, then, we've got to get busy," before he could add a direction he was halted by a soft buzzing from the telephone. For an instant he hesitated while the others regarded him doubt-fully. "We've got to take a chance," Garson went to the desk and put the receiver to his ear. There came again the faint tapping of some one at the other end of the line, signaling a message in the Morse code. An expression of blank amazement, which grew in a flash to deep concern, showed on Garson's face as he listened tensely.

"Why, this is Mary calling," he muttered. "Mary?" Griggs cried.

"Yes, she's on," Garson interpreted a moment later as the tapping ceased for a little. He translated in a loud whisper as the irregular ticking noise sounded again.

"I shall be there almost at once. I am sending this message from the drug store around the corner. Have some one open the door for me immediately."

"She's coming over!" Griggs cried incredulously. "No, I'll stop her," Garson declared firmly.

But when after tapping a few words the former paused for the reply no sound came.

"She don't answer?" he exclaimed. "On her way already," Griggs suggested. "I'll let her in." He drew a small torch from the skirt pocket of his coat and crossed to the hall door as Garson nodded assent.

"God! Why did she have to come?" Garson muttered, filled with forebodings. "If anything should go wrong now!"

He turned back toward the door just as it opened, and Mary darted into the room, with Griggs following closely at her heels.

"What do you want here?" he demanded, with peremptory savageness in his voice, which was a tone he had never hitherto used in addressing her.

There was only tender pleading in Mary's voice, though her words were an arraignment.

"Joe, you led to me!" "That can be settled later!" the man snapped. His jaw was thrust forward obstinately, and his clear eyes sparkled defiantly.

"You are fools, all of you!" Mary cried. "Yes, fools! This is burglary. I can't protect you if you are caught. How can I? Oh, come!" She held out her hands pleadingly toward Garson, and her voice dropped to beseeching.

"Joe, Joe, you must get away from this house at once, all of you! Joe, make them go!" "It's too late," was the stern answer. "We're here now, and we'll stay till the business is done."

"Joe, for my sake!" "I can't quit now until we've got what we came here after," he declared roughly. "Boys, let's get away! Please, oh, please! Joe, for God's sake!" Her tone was a sob.

"I'm going to see this through," said Garson doggedly. With a gesture of despair she turned away toward the door by which she had entered. "You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

"Of course not, Mary. I know you. You would go up for life first. Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Ducey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers, turn 'em off. Understand?"

With instant obedience the man went to his station by the hall door. "Red," Garson ordered, "you get to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way keep him and get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out or make a sound."

Chicago Red held up his huge hand, widely open. "Not a chance," he declared proudly, "with that over his mug."

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly. Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you, I quit!" "If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

CHAPTER XIV.
THE NOISELESS DEATH.

RED suddenly made a slight blasphe- mous noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in motionless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "and it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilchrist.

The next instant he had stepped within the room and Chicago Red had pounded on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. There came a sound of scuffling feet, and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly:

"I've got him!" "It's Dick!" The cry came as a wall of despair from the girl.

At the same moment Garson flashed his torch, and the light fell swiftly on young Gilchrist, bowed to a kneeling posture before the couch, half throttled by Chicago Red. Close beside him, Mary looked down in wordless despair over this final disaster of the night.

Garson flitted a step farther before he held the torch still, he, like the others, was in shadow.

"Get away, Red!" The fellow let go his grip. Freed of that strangling embrace, Dick stumbled blindly to his feet. Then, mechanically, his hand went to the lamp on the table back of the couch. When the mellow light streamed forth he uttered an ejaculation of stark amazement, for his gaze was riveted on the face of the woman he loved.

"Good God!" It was a cry of torture, wrung from his soul of agony. Mary swayed toward him, a little pallid with four-four for herself, for all of them, most of all for him.

"Hush, hush!" she panted warningly. "Oh, Dick, you don't understand!"

"I understand this," he said brokenly at last. "Whether you ever did it before or not, this time you have broken the law." A sudden inspiration on his own behalf came to him. For his love's sake he must seize on this opportunity given of fate to him for mastery.

"You're in my hands now. So are these men as well. Unless you do as I say, Mary, I'll kill every one of them."

"Who's this, anyhow?" Chicago Red demanded. "I'm her husband," Dick answered. "Who are you?"

"Don't speak any of you," Mary directed. "You mustn't let him hear your voices."

Dick was exasperated by this persistent identification of herself with these criminals in his father's house. (To Be Continued.)
